DETAILED ACTION

Information Disclosure Statement

1. The information disclosure statement (IDS) submitted on 02/27/2002 has been considered by Examiner and made of record in the application file.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

4. Claims 1-3, 6-7, 10-11, and 13-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C: 103(a) as being unpatentable over Mark (U.S PAT. 5,825,871) in view of Kohda et al. (U.S PUB. 2001/0011299 hereinafter, "Kohda").

Regarding claim 1, Mark discloses a telecommunications terminal, comprising: a memory device (Item 108) to store user-specific data (col. 10 lines 27-50); an input device (Item 105) having an output connected to the memory device (Item 104), to input the user-specific data into the memory device (Fig. 2 col. 8 lines 15-25); a transmission device having an input connected to the memory device, to transmit the user-specific data to another subscriber in a telecommunications network (Fig. 7 col. 36 lines 36-60), the memory device and the transmission device are configured to store at least one string of digits and to transmit the string while a connection to the other subscriber exists (col. 47 lines 47-61); and an actuation device to transfer the user-specific data from the memory device to the transmission device while the connection exists, the authentication device protects the user-specific data against unauthorized access (col. 49 lines 41-57). Mark differs from the claimed invention in not specifically teaching the transmission device has a plurality of preconfigured transmission units, and a selection device to select one or more preconfigured transmission devices. However, Kohda teaches the transmission device has a plurality of preconfigured transmission units, and a selection device to select one or more preconfigured transmission devices (page 6 [103]). Therefore, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Mark in the transmission device has a plurality of preconfigured transmission units, and a selection device to select one or more preconfigured transmission devices, as per teaching of Kohda, because it enhances for identifying a desirable service to be provided to a user from a large number of provided services.

Regarding claim 2, Mark further discloses the input device comprises digit keys (col. 57 lines 36-44).

Regarding claims 3, Mark further discloses the input device comprises a microphone, and a voice memory or voice processing device is connected downstream of the microphone (col. 8 lines 26-35).

Regarding claim 6, Mark further discloses the transmission device has multifrequency transmission unit (col. 34 lines 7-16).

Regarding claim 7, Mark further discloses the transmission device has voice transmission unit (col. 37 line 63 through col. 38 line 16).

Regarding claim 10, Mark further discloses the memory device is a multi-area memory to store a plurality of strings of digits in the memory areas, which can each be accessed using the actuation device (col. 38 lines 17-22).

Regarding claim 11, Mark further discloses the transmission device has an associated encryption unit to encrypt the user-specific data before and/or during transmission (col. 56 lines 21-31).

Regarding claim 13, Kohda further discloses the transmission device is configured to transmit the user-specific data via an IP network and has a web browser (Fig. 2 page 5 [0095]).

Regarding claim 14, Kohda further discloses the input device and/or the memory device are held in a supplementary module, which is connected via an interface with data capacity, for a telephone, having a separate housing (Fig. 2 page 5 [0095]).

Regarding claim 15, Kohda further discloses the supplementary module has a digit or alphanumeric keypad or a touch screen (page 7 [0124]).

5. Claims 4-5, 8-9, and 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Mark (U.S PAT. 5,825,871) in view of Kohda et al. (U.S PUB.

Art Unit: 2643

2001/0011299 hereinafter, "Kohda") as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of heinonen et al. (U.S PAT. 5,887,266 hereinafter, "Heinonen").

Regarding claim 4, Mark and Kohda, in combination, fails to disclose the input device and/or the actuation device have menu guidance. However, Heinonen teaches the input device and/or the actuation device have menu guidance (col. 2 lines 62-65). Therefore, it is obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to incorporate the disclosing of Heinonen into view of Mark and Kohda, in order to apply a method for using applications in a mobile station, and a system for effecting payments.

Regarding claim 5, Heinonen further discloses the authentication device comprises input, comparison and storage units authenticate by password (read on secret number), PIN or biometric data (Fig. 4a step 106 col. 6 lines 24-40).

Regarding claim 8, Heinonen further discloses the transmission device has a data fax, SMS, or USSD transmission unit (col. 2 line 56 through col. 3 line 10).

Regarding claim 9, Heinonen further discloses the selection device has menu guidance (col. 4 lines 26-35).

Art Unit: 2643

Regarding claim 12, Heinonen further discloses the terminal is a mobile telephone (col. 1 lines 11-25).
